Dear colleagues, readers, academicians supporting us as "peer"...

A New Year and first issue...

Given the changing conditions, increasingly globalizing world and developing technology, we are so glad to see that modifications we started to implement prior year were adopted by you.

As of 2021, our journals have been published in English as open-access, e-journal. This was driven by the fact that majority of colleagues follow scientific publications on internet rather than printed material.

As of 2021, we modified manuscript submissions and started to accept manuscript on the topic "REFRACTIVE-CORNEA". This modification was made based on the fact that cataract and refractive surgeries have become increasingly overlapping and integral parts of the field.

It is very hard, expensive and time-consuming to publish a journal. We have been long seeking "excellence" by addressing these challenges. Our purpose is to reach larger masses and be beneficial for ophthalmologists.

Dear colleagues, as mentioned above, our journal will continue to be published in English as open-access, e-journal.

We'd like to assure you that all our efforts are to serve Turkish Ophthalmology and contribute to our valuable writers and readers. You can have access to our journals via www.gazigoz.org, and www.retinavitreus.com and www.glokomkatarakt.com.

Thanks to Assistant Aditors who have great effort in the publication of journal... "Academicians supporting as peers" who meticulously review and guide our manuscripts... "Assistants" who work in the kitchen of our journal... Our "Writer" community and valuable "Readers" who had great contributions to reach these days...
